The phenomenon of online gaming and gambling is already acute in our society. Both of these are social tuba. The tuba is a potent poison to kill the target in traditional society. It can be in the form of food or drinks that are served that contain poison. Sometimes, the poison kills the victim rapidly, or it can be in a relatively long duration. This is because the substance in the poison will devour the victim's body, causing damage to the entire system in the body. Finally, fall or die in an instant.

Here, online games and online gambling can be categorized as tuba or poison. It is no exaggeration to say it is a social tuba. Therefore, these two social phenomena have damaged the community's immune system and social life, especially in rural areas. Children and teenagers are drunk with online games. Even parents can do nothing to deal with this social disease.

There are no weapons or powerful drugs to deal with online game addiction, especially with online gambling. When I see young people in coffee shops and under trees in villages, it seems that their minds have been "hijacked" by what makes them very addicted to online games or gambling.

Many have made a profit from this game. However, this advantage is not the point of the impact of online games and gambling, but behavior that has changed drastically. These behavioral changes may only be reviewed and peeled off by psychiatrists. However, when this becomes a new culture in society, other things arise, namely deviant behavior.

The funds in their shirt pockets will be drained for those jobless or still looking up to their parents. In addition, their brains are used more to think about winning matches or tournaments. Break time was not a little disturbed. Working hard to prepare for a promising future is far from being expected.

The above behavior may have a short-term impact. The long-term impact as a social tube is that an unhealthy society emerges. Critical reasoning becomes dull when you see them engrossed and mostly silent for hours on end. Because thinking energy is used for something that is not productive in thought. As a result, in the long run, they cannot face the real challenges of life on this earth.

In short, the social tuba is a new disease from gambling and online games. This symptom also appears among parents addicted to the games offered on their gadgets. Some are forced to spend millions to tens of millions of rupiah. Funds are drained systematically and systemically. There is curiosity, and you do not want to lose when you are busy playing.
